

The path to success is obvious to me

The path to success is obvious to me.

Others may struggle to choose the best path, but I am free of this challenge. I instinctively know the best path to reach success quickly.

I avoid the difficulties of indecision and confusion. I use my time efficiently and effectively. I make decisions quickly and intelligently.

By keeping an open mind, I have access to more possibilities. I consider each option before making a final decision. This process requires a minimal amount of time.

I am a magnet for success.

My intuition leads me in the best direction to attain my goals. I have learned from my mistakes over the years and honed my abilities to achieve success with a minimum of fuss.

I naturally seek success. I am drawn to success like a moth to a flame.

When the best plan to reach my goals becomes obvious, I pursue it relentlessly. My determination is one of my most valuable traits. Knowing the path is insufficient.

Following the path with dogged determination is what counts.

Today, I am opening my mind to consider all the possibilities. There is more than one way to reach my goals. I am willing to find and follow the optimal path. The path to success is obvious to me.

Self-Reflection Questions:

1. Do I take too long to make decisions? If so, why? What do I believe I am gaining by taking so much time?
2. Am I clear on my goals? How much more decisive could I be if I had clarity?
3. When have I followed an ineffective course of action? Why did it happen?
